

About Us

The Macmillan Unit at Christchurch Hospital is a Specialist Palliative Care Unit and Hospice for patients in South East Dorset and South West Hampshire. It is run by University Hospitals Dorset NHS Foundation Trust, and the core services are met by the Hospital Trust.

Macmillan Caring Locally works in partnership with the Trust to provide the services at the Macmillan Unit and in our local community. The Hospice is supported and funded by Macmillan Caring Locally, providing an exceptional standard of care and a homely environment for patients, their families, and visitors.

The charity also provides nursing, rehabilitation, and medical equipment to improve patient treatment and comfort. The charity funds the Family Support Team, Rehabilitation Team, Community Specialist Palliative Care Nurses, Virtual Day Centre, Hospice at Home Team and a number of senior medical staff roles at the Hospice. It also funds a team of Clinical Nurse Specialists permanently based at The Royal Bournemouth Hospital.

Please note: Macmillan Caring Locally is a small, community charity and is not connected in any way to the national charity Macmillan Cancer Support.

Making a Difference

By making a donation to Macmillan Caring Locally you are ensuring that the specialist, multi-disciplinary teams based at the Macmillan Unit and at The Royal Bournemouth Hospital can offer enhanced care to patients in the Hospice, in their homes, and at the Royal Bournemouth Hospital. You are also investing in our future plans to innovate and improve specialist palliative and end of life care services in our community.

Our Aims and Objectives

The aim of Macmillan Caring Locally is to support those who need specialist palliative and end of life care in our local community, as well as providing help and support for the whole family.

We act as the custodian of all funds donated towards the care of our patients and their families, and we both initiate and respond to a wide variety of needs supporting the improvement in patient care.

Legacies

Leaving a Legacy to Macmillan Caring Locally is a wonderful way to ensure that the specialist care we provide to our patients and their families will be available for future generations. If you plan to make a Will you should seek the advice of a solicitor or other professional advisor.

Our website www.macmillanlocal.org has useful information about different types of Legacy and how your gift will be used.

The details of our Charity, including our registered Charity Number are listed on the reverse.
